Opsahl Receives Doctorate

Mr. James Opsahl, zoology instructor at WSC, will receive his doctorate in zoology from the University of Illinois during February.

He received his B.A. degree in wildlife conservation from the University of California at Berkeley and his M.A. degree in zoology from the University of Illinois.

Mr. Opsahl is in his second year of teaching at Winona State.

Miss Garlid Resigns Phelps Position

Miss Georgia Garlid, music supervisor at Phelps school for nine years, has announced that she is leaving the faculty at the end of winter quarter to accept a position as consultant in elementary music in the Minneapolis public school system.

Her new business address is Administration Building, 807 N. E. Broadway, Minneapolis 13, Minnesota.

Winter Party Sports Victors Name Carol Buettner as "Fair Lady"

The Winter Party has once again provided fun for all. Outdoor sports, crowning of a "Fair Lady", and a dance highlighted the festive week beginning Jan. 26.

During the first part of the week, competition between teams took place. The activities included dog sled racing, toboggan racing, broom hockey, volleyball, and a tug-of-war. Each team put forth its best effort in order that its candidate could be named Winona State's "Fair Lady". Miss Carol Buettner, Red Wing, was crowned "Fair Lady" as her team composed of Dave Glazier, John Gruden, Charles Carstensen, and Bob Slifka placed first. The attendants were the Misses Charlotte Johnson, Ramona Olstad, Renee Robertson, and Joyce Schuldt.

Coronation took place Friday, Jan. 30, between the dormitories. Harvey Peterson, Rex Scientas III, and Miss Marri Huttemeier, last year's "Fair Lady", presented Miss Buettner with a scarf, scroll, and banner during the coronation. Following the coronation there was a dance in the Smog with music provided by Johnny Robert's Orchestra.

Saturday afternoon students went ice skating at Lake Park and tobogganing at the Country Club. That evening a program was held in the Richards Hall Cafeteria with Darrell Bearson as emcee. Entertainment included Bill Hahn and Curt Hanson singing their well-known songs. Later everyone joined in on the singing. Refreshments were served after the program.

General Chairman, Dick Mackey, along with the following Committee Chairmen organized the party: Kay Way, dance; John Gruden, posters; Bob Arko, sports; Jeanne Stegen, scrolls; Carol Friday, coronation; Bob Gillespie, buttons; Joyce Schuldt, publicity; Don Schierholt, assembly.

WSC Becomes Dominion of Celebrated Royalty

Royal blood flows deep around Winona State these days. Don't be surprised if you see Miss Snowflake of the Winter Carnival walking in the halls or Miss Campus Cover Girl dressed much the same as the rest of us commoners. Further reducing the school to serfdom is the presence of the Winter Party "Fair Lady" and king, Rex Scientas III, two Winter Carnival attendants, and our Cover Girl's court.

The more energetic mortals may even get a glimpse of Prince Ranier or Frederick the Great.

As a special public service THE WINONAN follows with biographies of the colorful monarchs inclosed in special human-interest reports to aid in searching for their presence in our midst. . . .

Char Svenningson Named Campus Cover Girl at Mardi Gras Dance

As result of an all-college ballot, Charlotte Svenningson was selected as Winona State's Campus Cover Girl for 1959. She will now compete for Upper Midwest honors along with college girls from five other states.

Kay Way Reigns Over Winter Carnival

Kay Way, a Winona State junior, was chosen Winona's Miss Snowflake at the Winter Carnival Coronation Ball. Her attendants, Judy Bauch and Sharon Peterson, both from WSC, gave the college a clean sweep of honors at the coronation.

Charlotte has been active in SNEA as vice-president, WPE, and was appointed to Who's Who. She has served as Social and Assembly Commissioner, on the orientation team, as class officer for two years, and was a Homecoming queen attendant.

On Feb. 6, voting took place in front of the box office. The result of this balloting was not made known until that evening at the Mardi Gras dance when Charlotte was named WSC Campus Cover Girl.

The candidates selected by the Commission were Jeanne Stegen, Melrose Park, Illinois; Nola Knutson, Alma; Abbie Berge, Minneapolis; Sylvia Eglinton, Houston; Darlene Moeller, Fairmont; Mary Claire Thompson, Winona; and Charlotte.

Queen Kay is majoring in English and minoring in speech. She plans to teach two years after she graduates and then hopes to travel in Europe. She is a member of the Radio Guild, Dolphin Club, is treasurer of the Wenonah Players, and is historian of the Winona State Speech Association.

Kay's royal duties began Saturday, Jan. 24, with a luncheon for the royalty at the Hotel Winona before the carnival parade. She and other Winter Carnival royalty attended the St. Paul Winter Carnival.

An organized effort to solicit endowments and grants for Winona State College would be an appropriate task for a committee of faculty, students, and community leaders, especially appointed for this purpose.

An ever-growing myth in the popular mind today is that only private educational institutions are in need of such aid, since state colleges and universities are provided for amply by tax receipts. The state colleges, facing building programs and expansion of facilities necessitated by a rapidly rising population, are in grave danger of being left behind by the state university, always a consistent receiver of private grants, and the numerous private colleges, which are banding together in an effort actively to solicit private aid.

A fund-raising committee, investigating every possible source of aid, would serve a two-fold purpose. First, it would integrate effort and pool resources of several different groups, each having a vital interest in the college's continued growth. Second, it would call attention to the needs of the college in the popular mind, creating a more favorable climate of opinion for academic prosperity in Winona.

Recently, Carleton College received one and one half million dollars in the form of a grant from a national, private foundation. This grant was openly sought after by the administration of the college, who's earnest efforts were rewarded to a very high degree. While no one on the local scene would suggest that Winona State elicit a contribution of one and one half million dollars, never-the-less, the good fortune of Carleton points up the success that is frequently achieved from setting a goal and working all out to realize it.

A committee, working diligently to publicize the growing needs of the college, and actively seeking grants of funds with which to alleviate them, would be neither out of character nor unrealistic in its proposed scope of activities. The old saying, "Where there's a will, there's a way" is becoming every more appropriate in the fight to continue and expand the high quality of state controlled higher education in teacher-training institutions' and liberal arts colleges. A Modest Proposal

by Richard Sass

With all the interest today in speedy means of transportation it seems that something should be done to improve transportation facilities within our college.

Mechanized transportation is so commonplace today that a great number of students drive their own cars to school. Cars have become so much a part of the student that they are often misplaced just as gloves or a book might be. A remark often made by students is "I wonder where I parked my car this morning".

Everywhere we look we see cars, trains, planes, motor scooters, but in our schools the only means of getting from here to there is still the legs. Today when nearly all power is measured in horses, a student must still measure the power which moves him from the "Smog" to some long-awaited class, in "foot-power".

Think of the injustice of this situation. Our department stores and office buildings have escalators and elevators, golf courses provide motor scooters for their exhausted patrons and officials in the Pentagon have even considered some type of mechanical transportation for their weary messengers.

But in our school we still move about on our outmoded legs. It would only be fair and sensible if some convenience such as elevators or escalators were installed at Winona State College. The benefits to be gained would be many and varied. One benefit would be the disappearance of the student too tired from climbing the stairs to answer "here" to the instructor's roll call. The energy saved by using the elevators or escalators might result in higher scholastic achievement for the student. Other possible benefits might be an improvement in attendance at Monday morning assemblies and more energy to use in cheering the team at basketball games. The most humane benefit to be derived from the installation of elevators or escalators would be the relief it would afford those students who find themselves too exhausted from their recent climb to inhale a cigarette or to sip a cup of coffee.

One drawback to this proposal is the cost of installing elevators or escalators, but it is quite probable that a plan could be adopted to solve this problem. If not, however, an alternate proposal could be some sort of compulsory physical training for all students to help them meet the rigors of climbing the stairs they encounter in going to classes or in keeping other dates and appointments.

This proposal deserves a good deal of thought and contemplation by all concerned.

Recreation, Anyone?

By Glenn Dahlem

Anyone passing through the basement of Richards Hall these days would be amazed by the number of recreational activities being participated in by the boys and girls living in the college dormitories.

Most popular at the moment seems to be the Skill-Pool table, purchased recently by Richards Hall residents with the profits from their Coca-Cola and Seven-Up machines. Participants and spectators crowd around the table from morning till late at night. So heavy is the use of the equipment that, to date, three cues and a bumper have become casualties.

Those who prefer a little more active entertainment make use of the two table-tennis tables, since equipment is available for all at the dormitory desk. All degrees of proficiency and styles of play can be observed in the course of an evening, and "ping-pong" is becoming increasingly popular.

The recent interest in weight-lifting as an aid to athletic conditioning has had its effect on Richards Hall residents, too. A small room is devoted to equipment for this sport, and several aspiring young athletes can frequently be found within its confines, pressing and curling with enthusiasm.

Recently, the college purchased four toboggans for use of dormitory residents. These toboggans are kept in the weight room and may be signed out at will. Mixed toboggan parties are becoming more and more popular, especially since recent heavy snowfalls.

When one enters the Richards Hall basement, he is frequently greeted by the plaintive strains of some old Hawaiian melody, or a honky-tonk piano rendition reminiscent of Joe "Fingers" Carr. The music in question emanates from the old faithful piano, which is holding its own as a source of recreation against the other activities. One is astonished by the number of students who prove musically inclined.

In order that more pleasure may be derived from participation in games and other recreational pursuits, a tournament chart is being prepared for the Richards Hall recreation room, so that it will be possible to have informal competition between groups and individual boys and girls. The chart is being based on Dr. McCown's unit on tournaments, used in his course on the organization and administration of physical education. This chart will make it possible to conduct round robin, elimination, ladder, and pyramid tournaments in such events as Skill-Pool doubles and singles, table-tennis doubles and singles, weight lifting, chess, and checkers.

A famous writer once said, "Man is a gaming animal," and the residents of Richards Hall have proved that they are not exceptions to the rule.

Spring Fashions

What are the fashion prospects for spring, 1959?

Take it from Mademoiselle: this spring you can count on some of the loveliest colors and fabrics in years—and two equally attractive silhouettes.

According to the February Mademoiselle, this will be a season of light wools, flax, cottons and blends—fabrics that are not so much woven as wafted into being. You'll see them in colors to delight a fashion gourmet—in honey beige, in tea with a dash of sugar, in a gathering of garden pinks with spicy overtones, in crystal peach.

The good news about shape this spring is that you'll be able to choose between two. One silhouette is romantic, lifted at the waist and shaped slenderly. The other is semi-casual and relaxed in the legendary manner of Chanel.

Mademoiselle projects the cropped jacket suit on its cover this month to dramatize the high spirited look of spring.

The suit, in one of the season's new colors—Queen of Pinks—is in new, trend-setting texture, a very feather weight wool filament with white. Just as new are the carved curves of the suit, its neck held away by an air pocket, shoulders and sleeves rounded, jacket stopped short. Pinned at the high waist are fanciful geraniums—a bouquet that comes with the suit. Shown with the outfit are a Renaissance pink pill-box in straw, cloud pink earrings, and significantly longer gloves.

Still on the subject of accessories here are some fashion flashes from Mademoiselle:

In belts you'll have a choice between some as wide as five inches—and narrow belts that move up or down as the spirit moves you.

Handbags, with rounded shapes via frames and gussets, will be smaller but still commodious.

You'll be pleased to know that heels will be lower.

For finishing touches look to clusters of artificial flowers as well as plenty of massed necklaces and bracelets.

A Warriorette-Why?

Sports Editor Finds Out

By Jack McCarl

There is no doubt that a good many of you sports fans have, at one time or another, watched the school's precision dance team under the direction of Miss Nancy Tubb in action. Ever think of why these twenty girls like being Warriorettes? Well, sir, I and a lot of others have wondered, and so through a little research and some "ace maneuveration", I came up with a sort of an answer to the question.

One of these pretty misses, speaking as an example for all the girls, had this to say. "I guess one of the many reasons I like being a member of the group is that I was one of the original sixteen girls who helped get the organization started. And, too, I was very lucky and happy to be one of the few girls chosen for the team."

She went on, "As things went along, being a Warriorette became even nicer when we received our spanking and smart new uniforms. Any girl would be proud to march in one of these uniforms. They are such an improvement over the old physical education outfits we had for too long."

We do many things similar to those of the famed Kilgore College Rangerettes. Besides school sporting events, we perform in parades such as the recent St. Paul Winter Carnival, and our own winter carnival in Winona. We were even asked to perform at the Christmas Dinner for the Merchants National Bank. At this engagement we worked out a Santa Claus-reindeer number. Even red-nosed little Rudolph was in there. We did this same number for the Phelps first, second, third, and eighth graders. The experience of traveling to the Cities was very enjoyable — being a Warriorette is a lot of fun."

Whether any of the readers of this column saw the girls' Christmas number, I do not know. But how those Phelps eighth graders rate over college people is beyond me — men, you all should have seen the costumes the girls were wearing for that routine — Va, Va, Voom!

All kidding aside, I think a great big hand should be extended Nancy Tubb and her Warriorettes, and certainly all of the other officers and advisers making this fine example of school color possible. Nice going girls... keep it up.

This week's competition will put the lid over non-conference games on the 1958-59 basketball schedule. After tomorrow's contest, all that remains for the locals to play are a pair of NSCC games here — Feb. 28 against the Huskivillers and March 2 against the Michigan Tech quintet.

At last Saturday's game, the Warriors had quite a big night at the foul line to earn their victory over the Injuns from 'Kato.

Winona State, outmaneuvered on field goals 32-24, made good 36 of 42 gift toss attempts to account for the win.

Hustling Don Klagge, with 19 points, was the big gun for the Winonans. He led a big parade of WSC scorers in the double figure column — Larry Engel had 17, Jon Kaiser, and Gale Sprute 13 apiece, and Herbert Espinda 11. Jerry Flanagan, hitting on beautifully executed jump shots from outside the circle, paced MSC with 24 tallies.

Alumni News

The college has heard from two former graduates and their families who now hold overseas positions in the educational field.

● George and Lillian Kabat are in Lahore, Pakistan, where he is to assist the Secretary of Education in establishing an extension Training Center for administrators and teachers. Concerning her impressions of Pakistan, Mrs. Kabat wrote, "As a newcomer to the sub-continent, I was dismayed at the ever present servants. You can do nothing for yourself if they can help it; to do so would reflect on the quality of the servant. The bearer learns your wishes and sees to it that they are carried out (usually by someone else). . . . If a woman observes 'purdah' she is not supposed to permit her face to be seen in public and particularly not by a man. In one school George visited, the teacher was in 'purdah' so she hid behind the blackboard." George Kabat commented on the ill-equipped schools where the curriculum and religion require a study of Urdu (a native dialect), Persian, Arabic and English.

● Roberta and Cy Cook are at Anatolia College Salonica, Greece. He is there under a Fulbright scholarship. Anatolia College is an American-sponsored school for boys and girls. The Cooks reported, "They are delightful students, eager to learn, especially English". The Cooks plan to tour Europe this summer and hope to return to Anatolia College for a second year.

Arise in Winona, Dine in Mexico City

After breakfast in Winona, Elaine Fuller, a 1958 graduate of Winona State, departed Monday for Mexico City via Chicago on the 8:35 a.m. North Central Airlines flight. She arrived in Mexico's capital late that night.

Cheered on by her parents Dr. and Mrs. John J. Fuller, Marion Davis, and a congregation of WSC students, Elaine left for her ultimate destination — Costa Rica. As recipient of a U.S. educational exchange award, Elaine will tour and study for the next 9 to 12 months in Central America.

Versatile Pianist Entertains Students at Assembly

Nicolas Slonimsky, pianist, composer, lecturer, and author appeared at the Feb. 2 assembly program. As a composer, Mr. Slonimsky has developed his own system of composition, based on an ingenious theory, but the resulting products are entirely pleasing to the ear. Mr. Slonimsky has conducted major European and American orchestras and has lectured in many Latin American countries, as well as in the United States.

A critic has described Mr. Slonimsky as a "one-man conservatory — he plays the music, he writes it, he lectures on it, and he conducts it".

News Notes

"Your Career in College Teaching" was the topic discussed by Dr. Ruth Eckert on Feb. 4 to selected students of the College of St. Teresa, St. Mary's College, and WSC. In the evening, graduate students and faculty members from all three colleges heard Dr. Eckert speak on "Emerging Problems in Higher Education". A general discussion followed.

A buffet supper served by members of the AAUW of Winona was held in the Smog.

Following the supper, Kappa Delta Pi held its initiation of new members in the Social Room. The secretary presented the initiates to the officers performing the ceremony. At the close of the ceremony, old members welcomed the following new members: Judy Bauch, Kathryn Carlson, William Eberhard, Robert Fahey, Joanne Huttula, Helen Maki, and Susan Schwager.

A short business meeting followed the initiation.
